

Doggie Vibes

A group of German Members of Parliament (MPs) are trying to change parliamentary rules – so they can take their dogs to work with them.

Around 15 of Germany's MPs have formally applied to parliamentary president Norbert Lammert to change the rules so they can bring their dogs, the Tagesspiegel newspaper reported. They are hoping some canine company could help make the atmosphere more constructive. "A dog has a positive effect on its environment," said Heinz Paula, animal protection expert for the Social Democrat parliamentary party.
